About the Seminar

What previous attendees have said:

“Enjoyed the topic of SEPA appeal process and ways to make it better.”

“Supplemental materials useful and will be great resource for later”

“Some other conferences focus so much on networking that they lack content, but LSI always puts on very informational programs.”

The seminar brings you important information on legislative, judicial, and administrative developments in SEPA and NEPA law during the past year. Speakers from a wide range of perspectives will address the most recent SEPA/NEPA compliance, litigation, and policy issues confronting land use and environmental professionals today.

These special topics will include how Trump Administration and recent Washington State legislation may speed up the EIS process; how to study greenhouse gas impacts after the Trump Administration's repeal of climate guidance and Ecology's withdrawal of its internal guidance, and the decisions issued in recent litigation; the increasing use of substantive SEPA by the courts and state and local governments; and the nuances of deciding when there is an "action" for purposes of SEPA review.

Throughout the program, there will be lively discussion, commentary, and exchanges of ideas and opinions. We hope you will join us.

~ Program Co-Chairs: Rodney L. Brown, Jr., Esq. of Cascadia Law Group and Patrick J. Schneider, Esq. of Foster Pepper PLLC

Rodney L. Brown, Jr., Program Co-Chair, founder Cascadia Law Group, focuses on natural resources, transportation megaprojects, energy and other environmental and natural resource issues. He was the principal author of Washington’s Superfund law and Model Toxics Control Act and is named in Best Lawyers and Washington Law and Politics Super Lawyers.

Patrick J. Schneider, Program Co-Chair, is a member at Foster Pepper PLLC. He assists private companies, public entities and landowners in negotiating local and state regulatory processes. He was lead land use attorney for Seattle, as well as a senior land use attorney for King County, and was one of the drafters of the Land Use Petition Act.

Deborah L. Cade is a Managing Assistant Attorney General in the Transportation and Public Construction Division of the Washington State Attorney General’s Office and is Chief Environmental Counsel to the Washington State Department of Transportation.

James C. Carmody, at Meyer Fluegge & Tenney PS, has come to be regarded as one of the leading land use and environmental attorneys in the State of Washington. His professional experience is in business, corporate, real estate, and land use/environmental planning.

Jay P. Derr, partner at Van Ness Feldman LLP, assists both public and private sector clients to guide their projects through to completion. He balances various factors and considerations to successfully negotiate the appropriate scope of SEPA and NEPA environmental review and mitigation.

Steven J. Gillespie, member at Foster Pepper PLLC, helps private and public clients obtain and defend land use entitlements, obtain master plan approvals as well as project-level permits. He also litigates land use, environmental, and real estate matters.

G. Richard Hill, is a named partner at McCullough Hill Leary PS. His practice emphasizes the land use entitlement process throughout Western Washington. He assists private and public sector clients in obtaining governmental approvals for commercial, residential, educational, life sciences and recreational developments.

Mark Johnson is Northwest Director of Community Development for Environmental Science Associates (ESA). He helps clients plan, design, permit, and implement their planning and development projects..

Dennis McLaren, Of Counsel at Cascadia Law Group PLLC, formerly was the EPA Region 10 Administrator for the Pacific Northwest and Alaska. He now serves on the Leadership Council of the Puget Sound Partnership, and as Board Member of the US arm of the Stockholm Environment Institute.

Owen L. Schmidt is an environmental consultant and principal of Owen L Schmidt LLC. He formerly served as Senior Counsel with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Office of the General Counsel, in Portland, Oregon, where he advised the Forest Service, Natural Resources Conservation Service, and other USDA agencies.

Brett VandenHeuvel, Executive Director of Columbia Riverkeeper, has litigated cases challenging illegal pollution discharge, LNG terminal land use approvals, and failure to disclose public information.

Laura J. Watson, Senior Assistant Attorney General in the Washington State Office of the Attorney General specializes in complex negotiation, appellate and trial litigation, client training, drafting of ballot titles, rules, legislation, and public communications.

Perry Weinberg is the Environmental Compliance Manager and Legal Counsel for the Central Puget Sound Regional Transit Authority (Sound Transit). He oversees the agency’s environmental compliance activities and is the agency’s SEPA Responsible Official. As environmental legal counsel, he advises staff and the Board of Directors on environmental and land use matters and manages environmental litigation.

Thomas J. Young is an Assistant Attorney General for the Ecology Division at the Washington State Attorney General’s Office.
