Despite recent years of high runoff and overflowing reservoirs, water supplies and water administration remain critical issues in Idaho. This year’s annual conference brings together Idaho and regional water law and water management professionals to update you on new legal, regulatory and business developments affecting water use.

This year’s program includes increased emphasis on issues of interest to municipalities, including developments affecting existing municipal water rights and future water needs, Snake River Basin water rights administration in the post-water rights adjudication era and new developments involving discharges to drains and irrigation canals and encroachments in irrigation rights-of-way.

For attorneys, governmental representatives, environmental, real estate and land use professionals, the conference provides in-depth discussion on the major water issues in Idaho today. Hope to see you there.

~ Program Co-Chairs: Michael C. Creamer, Esq. of Givens Pursley LLP and Peter G. Scott, Esq. of Gough, Shanahan, Johnson & Waterman, PLLP
