Who Should Attend:
Attorneys, land use, real estate, and environmental professionals, consultants and governmental officials and regulatory staff
This workshop will feature presentations and discussions of the most important SEPA/NEPA compliance, litigation, negotiation, and policy issues confronting land use and environmental professionals today. The program will include recent developments in both SEPA and NEPA law and focus special attention on how extensive 2012 SEPA amendments are being implemented by ongoing rule-making on SEPA exemptions, the environmental checklist and coordination of SEPA and GMA compliance to expedite and facilitate SEPA compliance. The negotiation of multi-interest compromises on SEPA legislation and rule-making will be addressed by speakers representing local government, environmental, and development interests. An expert panel will discuss and debate the timely topic of the scope of environmental impact statements under NEPA and SEPA for proposed coal export terminals, as well as the analysis of climate change impact under SEPA and NEPA.

The interdisciplinary nature of SEPA and NEPA, the complimentary roles of a wide range of land use and environmental professionals, and the project and nonproject contexts of SEPA/NEPA compliance will be ongoing themes of the seminar.

As in past seminars, there will be lively discussion, commentary and exchanges of opinions.

~ Program Co-Chairs: Rodney L. Brown, Jr., Esq. of Cascadia Law Group PLLC and Richard L. Settle, Esq. of Foster Pepper PLLC, and Seattle University School of Law
Rodney L. Brown, Jr., Program Co-Chair, founding partner, Cascadia Law Group, permits projects under NEPA and SEPA and helps create and reform existing environmental regulatory systems, including MTCA, GMA, and the Regulatory Reform Act. He was on the Washington State Climate Action Team.

Richard L. Settle, Program Co-Chair, Of Counsel, Foster Pepper PLLC, and Professor of Law Emeritus, Seattle University School of Law, focuses on land use, environmental and municipal law; represents landowners, developers, and governmental entities; and is an expert witness and mediator. He is the author of two books and numerous articles on Washington land use and environmental law.

Neil L. Aaland, Moderator, Consulting Planner, Aaland Planning Services, Inc., helps local governments navigate various requirements of state law (including the Growth Management Act, SEPA, and natural resources policy development and implementation). He is also a land use hearing examiner and provides public meeting facilitation, stakeholder advisory group facilitation and strategic planning.

Beth S. Ginsberg, partner, Stoel Rives LLP, focuses on environmental, wildlife and natural resource litigation; permitting and counseling. Her clients include hydroelectric power facilities, port authorities, cities and counties, private landowners, energy producers and users, and industrial and navigational interests.

Kamuron Gurol, Assistant City Manager and Community Development Director, City of Sammamish. Previously, he was a corridor-planning manager for the Washington State Department of Transportation’s Urban Planning Office as Director of the Kitsap County Department of Community Development, and as manager of the Snohomish County Planning Division.

Jan Hasselman, Earthjustice, focuses on national environmental issues including endangered species, public lands, pesticides and hydroelectric dams. He represents clients opposing the construction of coal export terminals in the Pacific Northwest.

G. Richard Hill, partner, McCullough Hill Leary, PS; specializes in the land use entitlement process. He helps private and public sector clients obtain governmental approvals for commercial, residential, educational, life sciences and recreational developments.

Brandon Houskeeper, Director of Government Affairs on Environmental Issues, Association of Washington Business, including land use, climate change, and regulatory reform.

Edward G. McGuire, President, E.G. McGuire & Associates LLC, provides GMA/SMA consulting, mediation and hearing examiner services. He is an adjunct professor at Seattle University School of Law. He was an Attorney Board Member of Central Puget Sound Growth Management Hearings Board.

Claudia M. Newman, partner, Bricklin & Newman, LLP, focuses on land use and environmental law, with an emphasis on comprehensive planning, environmental review, and site-specific development proposals as well as federal environmental laws, including the Clean Water Act and the Endangered Species Act. She is a certified mediator.

April Putney, Director of Policy & Advocacy, Futurewise, coordinates statewide policy and field strategies to create healthy communities and protect the landscapes of Washington State. She has worked on multiple campaigns to activate citizens and educate them on the impacts of irresponsible development.

Harry Reinert, Special Projects Manager, King County Department of Development and Environmental Services, works on land use and environmental issues. Previously he was Executive Director of the Land Use Study Commission, staff counsel to the Regulatory Reform Task Force, and staff attorney for several committees of the Washington House of Representatives.

Owen L. Schmidt, environmental consultant and principal, Owen L. Schmidt LLC. He is the author of NEPA Models and Case Lists. Previously, he acted as Senior Counsel with the U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Office of the General Counsel in Portland, OR, and as a Special Assistant U.S. Attorney.

Jeffrey S. Wilson, Director, Chelan County Department of Community Development, has planning experience in the public and private sectors, serving as both SEPA Responsible Official and Shoreline Administrator. He is a former member of the City of Edmonds City Council and is currently an alternate on the SEPA Advisory Rulemaking Committee representing the Washington Association of Counties.
